Introduction

Creative writing is based more on manifestation rather than on expression. It does not inform rather reveals, so it bears no reference. The best creative writing is critical, and the best critical writing is creative. The present article is the outcome of creative writing meant for lay readers. As such free style is the methodology adopted so that the pleasure of reading can be enjoyed by the common mass. As you know well that, Francis Bacon (1561-1626), the immortal writer, wrote many essays, and notably "Of Love", "Of Friendship", "Of Ambition", "Of Studies", etc. The myriad-minded genius rightly pointed out that all the words of the dictionary can be the themes of essays one can write. But little has been done, in this regard since his death, in order to finish his unfinished monumental works. In fact, Bacon's way of presentation and his unique style kindled imagination and inspired me to write essays, in the light of creative writing, thus to get relief through Catharsis.

Of Various

Various mean more than one. It is numerous. It is differing one from another. It is of several kinds. It is many-sided. It is characterized by variety. It is varied in nature or appearance. It is changeable. It is unlike each other. It is uncertain. It is variegated. Various are of several types, unlike one another e.g. tents in various shapes and sizes. It is individual and separate e.g. for various reasons, at various times, write under various names. Various are being different ones, or ones of different kinds of the same general thing e.g. various remedies. It is presenting or having many different qualities or aspects e.g. a man of various talents. It implies many e.g. various persons. Various are several or many e.g. found in various sections of the country. It is distinct e.g. bequests to the various heirs. It is versatile e.g. the various bounty of nature. It is different, diverse e.g. too various to form a group; the modes of procedure were various; types so various as to defy classification. It is separate, several, more than one e.g. came across various people; for various reasons. Variously means differently according to the particular case, time, place, etc. For example: He was variously described as a hero, a genius and a fool. Various, different, distinct, diversified, varied are synonymous and are applied to things sufficiently unlike to be perceivably of more than one kind. Various refer to several kinds of the same general thing e.g. various types of seaweed. Different is applied either to a single thing differing in identity or character from another, or to two or more things differing thus from one another e.g. a different story. It is two different stories concerning an event. Distinct, however, implies want of connection between things that may possibly be alike or similar e.g. two distinct accounts that coincide. Identical, same, uniform, similar are antonym of various. Variform is of various forms. Variometer is an instrument for comparing magnetic forces. It is a variable inductance of two connected coils, one rotating within the other. It is an instrument that indicates by a needle the rate of climb and descent. Variorum is with the notes of various commentators or editors. It is with the readings of various manuscripts or editions e.g. a variorum edition. It is a succession of changes. Various are different, diverse, separate, several. Man faces various events. He has to face. He is bound to face. It matters little, whether he likes it or not. Thus man, willy-nilly, faces various events infinite times from cradle to grave. In this regard he is quite undone. Only an experienced and wise person can choose the right one. Variety is the spice of life. That variety appears with different faces and facets having diversified degrees and dimensions along with various forms and features as well. Her hobbies are many and various. There are various ways of working out the sum. Various kinds of people attended the occasion. The police know him under various names. He showed me various electronic gadgets. For various undisclosed reasons the project was withdrawn. Monotony is alias and akin to agony. Various things offer relief from that agony. Various foods make a dish palatable. Various colours of nature make it so attractive. Various people i.e. people from all walks of life enriches a person with varied experiences that pave future success. Thus, various facts and figures serve and satisfy human needs in various ways. But variety may not be good always. It has negative side too. In case of course selection a student should opt seriously, as per his choice, from various options. In this regard proper counselling is very important. After selection of the concerned subject and proceeding long days one should not change that very subject. It kills time unnecessarily. The student becomes diverted. Valuable time of student life is wasted. All his class mates will be far ahead with their concerned subjects. He will have to start afresh. Again, he will have to start from zero with the new subject. His confidence is shaken. He becomes afraid. It creates psychological pressure. If he fails, due to time constraints he will be frustrated. As such the authority warns that," option once exercised is final and under no circumstances it can be changed". This strictness saves the students from diversion thereby ultimate destruction. It is simply done to save an inexperienced student from various future complications. In case of selection of life partner consent should be given after meticulous thinking. Here a person should be very much serious, since this decision involves the future of many lives who are dependent on that person alone. Here lives of spouse and children are involved. A student can change his option. He can anyhow manage the new subject. But change of life partner through desertion or divorce is a more risky and painful event as well. If the person lives the spouse on the ground that same face bores, then the person again will leave the new partner due to inertia and it will be a never-ending episode. This phenomenon gives birth to single parent. If both the partners feel bore then the children suffer most. It is the story of live together. Both the partners rush behind new faces. As a consequence, the orphan houses become over crowded with these midnight children. Such a child is derived from mother's affection. He becomes prodigal. These prodigal children become the headache of the society thereby nation at large. Thus, live together is not illegal. It is immoral. Change of lovers is quite treacherous. It is a disease. In the patriarchal society widow and deserted woman are considered as second-class citizen. They face social dogma. They are harassed and hackled in various ways. The lovers know not where to stop when to stop and how to stop. A rolling stone gathers no moss. Similarly, they get no family of their own. Marriage is a long journey. Tolerance is its only fuel. Without tolerance any relation seldom lasts long. But the paradox is that none of the partners has the tolerance capacity. Man does not get everything instant. He has to wait. But the couple know not waiting. Also, they do not know the value of waiting. They mark various dates in the calendar. They fix date for dating. Simultaneously, they fix more confirmed date for separation. Meeting may not be confirmed; rather separation is cent percent pre-assigned or pre-destined confirmed event. They are, as if, passengers of an airport waiting in transit. They also enjoy and relish this temporary transit relation. Sometimes this temporary relation may likely to be permanent. In fact, in every sphere of life, permanency of any relation depends on the likeness of the big boss. Family is destroyed due to polygamy. A man marries. One fine morning he feels no more attraction towards his wife. Then he marries another woman in the evening of that very day. After some days he marries another woman for the same reason and so on. This is the curse of various attractions. Various relations confuse. It offers options. It prizes. It punishes as well. It manifests choice thereby personality of a person. Where there is no option, standard of choice or intellect of the concerned person cannot be verified. In an examination there are various types of questions both compulsory and optional. Option of choice grades the students. Different students attempt different questions. From the answers of the questions the talent of the students can be verified. Also, from the answer of the identical question an examiner can grade the student and offers credit accordingly. Obviously, a good student does not write different thing, rather he writes differently.

Conclusion

When luck favours a person earns from various sources. In contrast, when luck favours not, a person experiences loss due to various drainages. This is the uniqueness of various acts variously.
